eflions on Two Libels; One entituled, Reſpectful Obſervations, &c. on the Memorial f the Elector of Hanover: And the Other call'd, No Queen, or No General, &c. Some ccount of the Reflections on the Elector of Hanover in the former, compar'd with other amphlets that attack the Proteſtant Succeſſion. Heads for ſome Clauſes humbly ſuppos'd to e neceſſary if the Legiſlature think fit to lay further Reſtraints on the Licentiouſneſs of he Preſs.

From Wednesday, January 16. to Saturday, January 19. 1712.

Countrym. I Brought you Two Pamphlets ſome time ago, Maſter; viz. One entituled, Reſpectful Obſervations on a late Print call'd a Memorial, ſaid to be publiſh'd by the Baron de Bothmar, in the Name of his Electoral Highneſs of Hanover: And another call'd, No Queen, or No General; an Argument proving the Neceſſity Her Majeſty is in, as well for the Safety of Her Perſon, as of Her Authority, to diſplace the Duke of Marlborow. Pray give me your Judgment of 'em.

Obſ. 'Tis very hard, Roger, that you ſhould require me to give my Judgment upon Libels that are writ without either Judgment or Honeſty. However, becauſe I am willing to oblige you, my Judgments of thoſe Pamphlets is, That they are a meer jingle of Words, without Argument or Connection; and that the Authors, if they be really writ by different Hands, are mercenary Tools, who either voluntarily write meerly for the ſake of a Penny, or are hir'd to do ſo by the French Faction, in order to impoſe upon the Mob, and to foment our Diviſions which are already come to an exorbitant Height.

Coun. As to the Firſt, call'd, Reſpectful Obſervations upon the Baron de Bothmar's Memorial; 'tis evident to me the Deſign of the Author is to reflect not ſo much upon that able and honeſt Miniſter, as upon his Maſter, the Elector, whom he ſlily repreſents as endeavouring to appeal to the People of Great Britain againſt her Majeſty, and to excite them to undutiful Practices.

Obſ. That's only a Mask, Roger; but ſo ill put on, that the Aſs's Ears appear very plain thro the Skin of the Lion's Head. The Libeller would fain be thought to trim, but does it with ſo little Judgment that his Byaſs is viſibly on the ſide of France and St. Germains; ſo that his Malice and Iriſh Principles are much too hard for his Cunning; for 'tis plain that Pag. 5. he reflects upon the Elector, 'For deſigning by the ſaid Memorial to lay a Foundation for a Party of Men to build undutiful Practices upon, againſt her Majeſty's juſt and prudent Meaſures, in order to promote the Peace and Happineſs of her People.'

In the ſame Page the Libeller owns the Tranſcript of the Memorial publiſh'd in the Daily-Courant to be genuine; but ſuggeſts, That the Elector could not give any Order, or conſent to have the ſame made publick, in order to court the popular Opinion, in giving her Majeſty his Sentiments about preſent Affairs. This is directly to impeach the Elector and his Miniſter of endeavouring to raiſe Mobs, which is evident from Pag. 6. and 7. and indeed from the whole Libel.

Countrym. Do not ſuch Practices and traiterous Suggeſtions come within the reach of the ſeveral Acts of Parliament, Maſter, which ſettle the Succeſſion in the Proteſtant Line of Hanover, and make it Treaſon to endeavour by Word or Writing to deprive the ſaid Family of their Right?.

Obſ. I muſt leave that to the Diciſion of the Gentlemen of the Long Robe; but certainly one would be apt to think that thoſe Suggeſtions are puniſhable by the ſaid Acts; for as the Family of Hanover is naturaliz'd, they are by conſequence Subjects to her Majeſty; and therefore if guilty of ſuch ſeditious and treaſonable Practices as this Author charges upon the Elector, in endeavouring to raiſe Mobs againſt her Majeſty, tho their Perſons cannot be reach'd while out of her Majeſty's Dominions, yet they may be proceeded againſt as Traytors, and forfeit their Pretenſions to our Crown, if found guilty of Treaſon. So that I am humbly of Opinion, Roger, thet the Author and Publiſher of this Pamphlet ought to be proſecuted according to the utmoſt Severity of Law; for pag. 10. he directly charges the Elector with not expreſſing himſelf clearly enough to prevent the Miſrepreſentations of a reſtleſs Party amongſt us. And pag. 12. and 13. he ſlily charges his Electoral Highneſs with 'Suggeſting, that 'France by her Dexterity could dazle the Eyes 'of her Britannick Majeſty, ſo as to induce her 'to accept of ſome Advantages ſo much to the 'prejudice of the other Allies, as that the Jea-'louſies thence ariſing ſhould be an Obſtacle to 'their Union for the future.

Theſe Things, together with the manifeſt Attacks in the Addreſſes, and other Pamphlets of the Party, upon the Principles of the Revolution, which laid the Foundation of her Majeſty's as well as of the Elector's Title, make it evident, that Deſigns to defeat the Proteſtant Succeſſion are not only form'd, but vigorouſly carry'd on by Men of arbitrary Principles and reſtleſs Practices among us. I have ſeveral times taken Notice of the traiterous Reflection made by the Author of the Libel, call'd, The Conduct of the Allies, againſt our Treaty with the Dutch for ſecuring the Hanover Succeſſion; which Treaty is arraigned by him, 'As being neither 'right in point of Policy, or good Senſe, That 'a foreign Power ſhould be call'd in to confirm 'our Succeſſion by way of Guarantee, otherwiſe, 'ſays the Libeller, we put it out of the power 'of our own Legiſlature to change our Succeſſion 'without that Conſent of the Prince or State who 'is Guarantee, how much ſoever the Neceſſities 'of the Kingdom may require it.

Countrym

Countrym. I know you have frequently taken notice of that Traiterous paſſage, Maſter, which ſtrikes ſo avowedly at the Hannover Succeſſion, and yet neither Publiſher nor Author has been call'd to an Account for it that I can hear of. But pray how does this come into your Head on the preſent occaſion.

Obſ. Very naturally, Roger, for you ſee the Author of that Libel and his Maſters did ſuppoſe there might be ſuch Neceſſity as wou'd require our Legiſlature to change that Succeſſion; and now this other Libeller, the Author of the Reſpectful Obſervations upon the Electors Memorial comes to hint at ſuch Neceſſities, if the Elector be chargeable with what he charges upon him. This is ſo reaſonable an Inference, as I believe can't juſtly be deny'd, and is ſo very inſolent, that no doubt our Legiſlature, who have the putting new Marks of Eſteem upon the Hannover Family under conſideration, will take care to prevent ſuch Inſults upon the Proteſtant Succeſſion, as it is Eſtabliſh'd in the Houſe of Hannover, not only by ſeveral Acts of Parliaments in England, but by the Treaty of Union betwixt the two Nations, which makes the ſaid Succeſſion Unalterable, any otherwiſe than according to the Limitations ſet down in the ſaid Acts.

Countrym. Since it is ſo, Maſter, I hope when our Legiſlature comes further to reſtrain the Licentiouſneſs of the Preſs, there will be care taken, that the Authors, Printers and Publiſhers of ſuch Traiterous Libels ſhall be puniſhable, and liable to be ſued by any one who ſhall think fit to preſent Informations or Indictments againſt them in her Majeſty's Courts of Juſtice, and that the Charges of ſuch Proſecutions ſhou'd be born by the Government.

Obſ. Why truly, Roger, I think it but very reaſonable, That ſuch a Clauſe next to one for reſtraining Treaſonable Pamphlets againſt her Majeſty, ſhou'd have the Precedency of all others in any ſuch Bill, and that thoſe Acts for eſtabliſhing the Succeſſion, ſhou'd be fortify'd by a new Sanction, with proper Penalties upon every Breach of them, ſo as the Proſecutions may be eaſy, and not lyable to ſuch Doubts or Intricacies as may diſcourage the Proſecutors.

Countrym. I perfectly agree with you, Maſter, and will ſpeak to my Repreſentatives about it, and hope every true Briton will do the like, and at the ſame time I'm of Opinion, it might alſo be reaſonable that there ſhou'd be a Clauſe in any ſuch Bill, againſt Libelling the Confederates, while they continue in the Alliance in ſuch a manner, as we find they are daily inſulted by the French Faction and their Pamphleeters, of which we have ſo many groſs Inſtances in the Conduct of the Allies, in Abel's Poſt-Boy and Supplement, the Account of the Obligations the States of Holland have to Great-Britain, &c. as are a ſhame to any civiliz'd Nation. There are other things which might be neceſſary in ſuch a Bill for preſerving our Peace and Union at home, with relation to our Religious Differences, and particularly as to the Church of Scotland, which is eſtabliſh'd by the particular Laws of that Country, as well as by the Union, upon the ſame Foot as the Church of England, but I wave thoſe things at preſent, and muſt deſire your Opinion of the Pamphlet, call'd, No Queen, or no General.

Obſ. There's nothing in it worth any Man's notice, Roger, but it's Malice; for never did any Pamphlet come more ſhort of the Title, the whole being an indigeſted Rhapſody of Words, without Senſe or Argument, heap'd up on purpoſe to revile the Duke of Marlborough, we had no Law of Scandalum Magnatum to Diviſions among the Subjects, as if her Ma had never recommended Union from the Th to run down the late Miniſtry, by bold Ac tions without Proof, as if we had no Laws ag Calumny and Slander, and to give the late for ſecuring the Church of England, ſu malicious Turn, with reſpect to ſome whom Author charges to have concurr'd in it as a gain to ruin the preſent Miniſtry, and to ſtruct her Majeſty's Affairs, as tends to ſet gether by the Ears, to expoſe the Diſſenter Monſters of Ingratitude to the Government, at the ſame time, to provoke them againſt old Friends as well as the Adminiſtration.

Countrym. That's a very ſevere Characte the Author and his Performance, Maſter.

Obſ. Tis not ſo ſevere as juſt, Roger, as appear to any Man who can miſpend ſo m time as to read it. The Author wou'd diſguiſe himſelf, but cannot hide his Clo Foot.

Thurſday, January 17. 1712.

From the Paris Gazette, dated Jan. 9.

Naples, December 1.

LAST Week a Council was held on the Affair of Signior Pignatelli, Biſhop of Leccé, in Preſence of the Viceroy; wherein the following Reſolutions were taken: That notwithſtanding the Interdict (or Declarations of Excommunication) the Churches or Chappels of Royal Foundation and Endowment in the Dioceſs of Leccé, ſhould be opened, as not being ſubject to the Juriſdiction of the Ordinary; and that if the Prieſts belonging to thoſe Churches would not ſay Maſs in them, others ſhould be ſent thither: That the Kinsfolk in the firſt or ſecond Degree of the Vicar-General of Leccé ſhould be Impriſoned and he himſelf Baniſhed. Upon Advice that the Biſhop was at Capua, the Viceroy ordered the Principal of the Rota of the Royal Tribunal, to go and ſerve a new Writ or Summons upon him; but he refuſed to do it, ſaying he would not be Excommunicated; and becauſe of this Refuſal, the Viceroy deprived him of his Office. Don Gregorio del-Valle was then nominated for this Commiſſion, which he accepted, becauſe he had been already Excommunicated by that Prelate, whom he commanded to repair hither to receive the King's Orders, but the Biſhop refuſed Obedience, and left Capua to retire to Rome.

Rome, Dec. 5. The 1ſt of this Month Signior Pignatelli Biſhop of Leccé, being driven from his Biſhoprick by Count Borromeo Viceroy of Naples, arrived here in a Coach with ſix Horſes which Cardinal Paulucci had ſent to meet him with a Gentleman, who conducted him to the Houſe of the Theatins of St. Andrea della Valle, where the Pope had cauſed Lodgings to be provided for him.

From the Paris Gazette, dated Jan. 16.

Rome, Dec. 12. The Pope is expecting Advice from Don Annibal Albano of his Departure from Inſpruck: Don Annibal writes, that the Archduke while he was in that City gave him two very favourable Audiences, in which he made him hope for the Reſtitution of Comacchio, referring however till after his Return to Germany and his Coronation the Concluſion of that Affair. Upon the Complaints which have been made by the Inhabitants of Civita Vecchia, that the Waters which had been conveyed thither ſome Years ago, for the Convenince of the Port were unwholſome, to which the Diſtempers and frequent Mortality is in part attributed, the Pope has given Order to Signior Lanciſi his Phyſician to go thither, to examine and make Report. We have Advice from Naples, that the Ship commanded by Captain Praſcau and two others which 'twas feared were loſt, were arrived, after having undergone a violent Storm and Men are at Work to refit them to ſail for the Coaſt of Tuſcany, where they are to convoy ſome Tartans and Tranſports, on which are to be imbarked the German Regiment of Ingelheim, and ſeveral Reformed Officers, for the Enterprize againſt Porto-Longone, which has ſo long been talked of. For that Service Stores of Ammunition and Proviſions are providing, and 'tis believed the German Troops which are come into the Territories of Tuſcany, are to be imployed in this Expedition. The Court of Naples are very much perplexed with the Affair of the Biſhop of Leccé, about which the Collateral Council have met ſeveral times; the more, becauſe the Prieſts who were ordered to go and ſay Maſs in the Royal Chappels there, have refuſed to obey, for fear of incurring the Cenſures with which the Nuncio at Naples has threatned them.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated Jan. 22.

Naples, Dec. 29. Count Borromeo our Viceroy has diſpatched the Adjutant Molines to Tuſcany, with Letters to General Zumjungen Commander in chief of the Imperial Troops there, to concert with him the Means of attacking Porto-Ercole and Porto-Longone; and talk of ſending from hence 2 Men of War 2 Galleys and a good Number of Tartans fitted out for Privateers, to cruiſe off thoſe two Places, to prevent the Enemy's putting Succours into them by Sea, while the Impetialiſts beſieg them by Land: Yet ſome are of Opinion thoſe Projects will he ſuſpended till the beginning of next Spring. Some Chaplains who were ſent laſt Week to Leccé, celebrated Maſs in two Churches there; but had not one Auditor, becauſe the Court of Rome has not taken off the Interdict laid on all the Churches of that City.

From the Amſterdam Courant, dated Jan. 21.

Madrid, Dec. 29. The King being very deſirous to carry on the War againſt the Portugueſe the next Campaign with greater Vigour than hitherto, has had frequent Conferences thereupon with the Marquis de Bay, the Count de Bergeik, and another Miniſter for military Affairs: But the Galleons ſtaying behind ſtill, and the Complaints from the Provinces againſt the new Impoſitions which the French introduce being very great, 'tis likely his Majeſty's Deſign in this Matter will prove abortive. The French among other Projects have propoſed to eſtabliſh Intendants of Provinces and Places, and to create Commiſſaries of War with the ſame Power and Authority as in France; but they are not like to take Effect for the preſent. 'Tis rumoured that the French Mode of making all Offices venal, is about to be put in Practice. The Duke d' Oſſuna being on his Departure for Paris, has obtained of the King, that inſtead of taking Bills with him to defray the great Expence of his Embaſſy, he may ſend Merchandize of this Country, as Wooll Fruit &c, to Holland; that he may maintain his Houſhold on the Produce of thoſe Goods.

From the Amſterdam Gazette, dated Jan. 22.

Bruſſels, Jan. 18. Men will ſpeedily be ſet to Work to make the Scarpe navigable, and 'tis hoped it will be compleated in 12 or 15 Days. The Boats laden with Tools and Materials neceſſary for that Work, are arrived at Hanon: The Enemy attempted to ſet them on fire; but their Deſign did not ſucceed. A Redoubt is raiſed on the Side of the Scarpe, in which about 200 Men will be put to cover our Workmen: And beſides, a Detachment is to be made from the neighbouring Places, to oppoſe the Enterprizes of the Enemy, who appear to deſign to diſturb our Men, and to hinder them from cleanſing the River, having ordered out ſeveral Detachments which by this Time are probably on the March.

From the Amſterdam Courant, dated Jan. 23.

Tournay, Jan. 20. On Sunday Morning laſt the Gates of Valenciennes were kept ſhut, becauſe Part of the Garriſon was ſent out to cover a Convoy of Forrage; which Convoy was to come with divers Troops from Conde Landrecy and other Places to Valenciennes, in Order to ſome Enterprize againſt our Men on the Scarpe. They threaten if we ſhould cleanſe that River where they have already filled it up, to fiil it at Hauterive or Cubré. In the mean time our Work on that River is carried on with good Diligence, and might be faſter were it not retarded by the high Water. At Valenciennes Shovels and Spades are providing to be diſtributed among the Soldiers; and General Luxembourg is ſpeedily expected there. They are likewiſe twiſting Hay there privately for Cavalry. We have Intelligence from St. Omer, that great Detachments were made from the Garriſons of Ipres, Calais, Dunkirk, and Places adjacent, which were all to be at a Rendezvous the 18th Inſtant: But this requires Confirmation.
